DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

1) The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negatived by the manner in which the invention was made.

2) Claims 1-2 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Tanaka et al (JP 2002-89611) in view of Monaco et al (6357612).

In re claim 1, Tanaka provides a gas spring comprising a piston (5) cylinder (1); a rod (6) which moves a piston within the piston cylinder along an axis to define a working volume (2, 3); an outer cylinder (17) mounted about the piston cylinder and coaxial to the axis to define an auxiliary volume (24); and a temperature compensation valve (15) mounted within the piston-cylinder to selectively communicate the working volume with the auxiliary volume in response to a predetermined temperature (abstract).

Tanaka lacks the teaching of a radial passage through the piston cylinder traverse to the axis to provide communication with the outer cylinder. Please note that in piston cylinder devices with a reservoir or compensation chamber disposed in an outer cylinder, a common arrangement is to provide the valve either at the end of the cylinder, as taught by Tanaka, or to provide the valve on a side portion of the cylinder.

Monaco et al teaches mounting a valve in a duel cylinder arrangement on the inner cylinder to provide communication between the inner and outer cylinder.

It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention to have provided the valve of Tanaka on the inner cylinder sidewall as taught by Monaco et al as a design choice and to provide a plurality of valves and passages in order to change the effect at various temperatures and further to decrease the length of the device.

In re claim 2, Tanaka et al provides an arrangement where the auxiliary volume extends the length of the piston-cylinder. (Figure 1)

Allowable Subject Matter

- 3) Claims 3-4 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.
- 4) Claims 5-13 are allowed.

Response to Arguments

- 5) Applicant's arguments with respect to claims 1-2 have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.

Conclusion

- 6) Applicant's amendment necessitated the new ground(s) of rejection presented in this Office action. Accordingly, THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. See MPEP

In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the date of this final action.
